Keeping a Secret.

(Original.)

"I? Engaged?"

"Yes."

"Who told you?"

"That I decline to say."

Now, of all the silly things for a man to do the silliest is to give a woman, especially a girl of eighteen,

part of an item of information and withhold the rest. One might as well

let go seven-eighths of an eel and try to hold the remainder by the tip of the tail. The way of it was this:

I was studying law at the time and was very ambitious to become an orator.

Complaining one day to my friend

Miss Rathvon that I had no place to practice elocution, he suggested that

I go down to his father's seaside place and out on to the dunes, where I could spout like a whale to the ocean. Since I was madly in love with Charlie's sister Jacqueline

I accepted. I went down on Friday.

Charlie couldn't go till Saturday afternoon.

There is nothing more ridiculous

than love-making, and my accusing

Miss Rathvon of being engaged was mere balderdash. I hadn't heard anything of the kind. I was simply leading up to telling her that I wanted her myself. The bit of dialogue between us occurred on the morning

after my arrival just as I was going out on to the dunes to practice elocution. I proceeded on my way and,

mounting one of the big mounds of sand, commenced my practice. I first chose parts of Daniel Webster's celebrated reply to Hayne. Standing with my face to the ocean, I spouted certain sentences, such as, "Bearing no such miserable interrogatory as 'What is all this worth?' repeating the last five words over and over again with different inflections. Then I switched off on to Mark Antony's oration over the dead body of Caesar, using in the same measure the words, "If any speak, for him have I offended." I winding up the exercise with Ham-let's soliloquy on death, looking vacantly out on the ocean as if I were considering the propriety of drowning

myself.

I rested and practiced alternately for two hours and was closing the exercise

with the soliloquy when, looking down the beach below, I saw an old fisherman coming toward me, keeping his eyes fixed on me. Then suddenly a face appeared above the sage grass within a few yards of me. I thought of retiring, but, turning, saw a man behind me. I was surrounded.

"Stand quiet, my man; we ain't a-goin' to hurt you," said the nearest

one, and in another moment the whole lot were on me. Two of them took hold of me, one by each arm, and the rest stood ready to tackle me in case of need. In vain I protested. They did not notice anything I said to them

or reply to my questions as to what it all meant. They took me back from the dunes and in the direction of the village. Then I espied Jacqueline coming. I was mortified that she should see me in such a plight, but glad to have some one know that I was being kidnaped. The men, seeing her, turned their steps toward her, and when we came up to her, while I stood scarlet and scowling, one of them said to her:

"We're goin' to turn him in. He was standin' on a dune talkin' to the ocean.

If we hadn't 'a' been there on the nick of time he'd 'a' walked right down and drowned himself."

"Jacqueline," I said, rosy red, "I see it all. These men have mistaken my elocution practice for the ravings of a lunatic. Good, isn't it? Ha, ha! Very funny," I tried to laugh.

What did the little mix do but look at me with a blank stare!

"Do you know him?" asked one of the men.

"I never saw him before in my life."

"That settles it," said the leader. "He thinks he knows you. I wonder what asylum he escaped from. There's nary

a one around here."

"You'd better take him to our house,"

said Jacqueline, "till you can find out about him. Likely his keeper will be here looking for him."

Fancy me led along for a lunatic,

the girl I loved pretending not to know me. I supposed that when we reached the house she would tell them

all about my elocution practice and the joke would be ended. She had other plans in view. It happened that none of the family was at home, so she was free to act as she liked. She led my keepers, who led me, to a room

in the attic and locked me in herself.

The men protested lest I should commit suicide by jumping from the window, but she said she didn't think

I was that kind of a bedlamite and there was no such risk. Then the men went away. Presently I heard a soft voice ask:

"Who told you I was engaged?"

I made no reply for a time, then

said curtly:

"I took so little interest in the matter that I have forgotten."

This was a home shot, and it told.

Jacqueline unlocked the door, and when I opened it I saw her going down the stairs with her nose in the air.

Later in the day Charlie came and found his sister and me not on speaking terms. He inquired the cause, and I was obliged to give it to him. His bursts of laughter infected both Jacqueline and me, and we soon joined him in his mirth.

I remained at the seashore a week,

though I practiced something very different from elocution—how to propose to a girl. But after all, I blurted

what I had to say. I was accepted.

EDMOND COMPTON.

AN IMPLSION.

It is the Opposite of an Explosion and Less Familiar.

Every one knows what an explosion is, but its opposite, an implsion, is less familiar. At great depths in the sea the conditions are favorable for its production. At 2,500 fathoms the pressure is, roughly speaking, two and a half tons to the square inch—that is to say, several times greater than the pressure exerted by the steam upon the piston of a powerful engine.

An interesting experiment to illustrate the enormous force of this deep sea pressure was made on the Albatross, a government vessel engaged in deep sea exploration.

A thick glass tube several inches in length full of air was hermetically

sealed at both ends. This was wrapped in flannel and placed in one of the wide copper cylinders used to protect deep sea thermometers when they are sent down with the sounding apparatus. The copper cylinder had holes bored in it, so that the water had free

access inside, round the glass.

The case was then sent down to a depth of 2,000 fathoms and drawn up again.

It was found that the cylinder was bulged and bent inward, just as if it had been crumpled inward by being violently squeezed. The glass tube itself, within its flannel wrapper, was reduced to a fine powder, almost like snow. The glass tube, it would seem,

as it slowly descended, held out long

against the pressure, but at last suddenly gave way and was crushed by the violence of the action to a fine powder.

This process, exactly the reverse of an explosion, is termed an implsion.

MASTERY OF THE NILE.

The Method by Which the Flow of Water Is Controlled.

Every morning from a little room of a great white house on the eastern shore of the Nile at Assuan is clicked

by telegraph to Cairo the question,

"How much water?" The answer comes so many thousands of gallons more or less than the water which batteries in the bridge at Cairo, and flows under the iron bridge at Cairo, and increased or diminished some ten days

later in accordance with the telegraphic answer, and the intervening valley

between Assuan and Cairo has a little more or a little less water on its surface. The man at the button may bring joy or sorrow to thousands of little farms—it is all according to the message he receives.

From the great white house there extends across the river a granite wall

or dam 150 feet high. Halfway up this wall and stretching its entire length a line of shutters opens or closes by a pressure of the button.

In the winter months a huge lake expands to the southward, which has every appearance of being a flood, for

in certain places the tops of palm trees are discernible above its surface, and the summits of inundated ruins apparently mark the sites of sunken cities.

As the days go by and Cairo demands

more and more water the palm trees

and the ruins seem to rise from their water beds until in June and early

July the river flows freely with all its historic indifference.—New York Times.

Will Women Usurp Brains?

A RECENT publication grows apprehensive over the problem of men outgrowing their wives from an intellectual standpoint, by which is meant, in general knowledge, culture, manners or breadth of view. The problem has presented itself in the case where a man, starting on his career, chooses as his partner a woman who is simple, unsophisticated, of meager education and perhaps no talents. The woman he loves because she is just herself and will make a good wife for him, because she can cook and sew and is versed in other departments of the science of housekeeping.

She is a woman of another capacity and does not keep pace with him in his climb to success and prominence, as a result he some day finds himself a great man of the hour of whom people begin to ask what are his family ties, who is his wife, and then comes embarrassment and the realization that while he has been busy progressing the wife has remained in the rut and is the same little woman of twenty years ago. What is the man to do? How is he to act under this circumstance? [This is the problem which puzzles and calls forth opinion.

But there is another side of the case which makes another problem for heads to ponder upon—a problem which has not always existed, perhaps, but is now just as probable as the other. In these days of co-education, free lectures, societies and woman's clubs is it not possible that women will and do out grow their husbands? It would never do for the fair sex to impress this state of affairs upon the minds of their lords for they would immediately put a kibosh on their joining an organization which would start any question as to who had the most brains in the family.

This question has been settled once and for all by the men themselves. However, woman's clubs are undermining this time-honored and accepted theory and there is really a problem involved, for women are being posted on everything under the sun now days from science to sanitation. All women, however humble, may belong to these circles of culture and improvement and it is not long until they can talk over their husbands heads unless the latter be very wise and well read fellows who keep pace with the world and their ambitious wives. What's to be done in such cases? The question is easier of solution than its opposite, for it is safe to say that a woman will keep her husband and children in touch with the knowledge she gleams and in time will convert the whole family to the belief that there is a great deal more in life worth while than just following the plow and polishing the kettle.

If the husband is unsympathetic and refuses to be interested of course the problem is then complex, but it rarely ever reaches this complexity. In the cases where it does the woman will probably be broad-minded enough to meet it fairly and wisely. She will have no false ideals or foolish notions which will make her think any the less of her husband because he knows nothing of the origin of Sankrit, the plays of Ibsen or the origin of pottery. She will appreciate other qualities and native talents in him and love him much for these.

When a man finds himself a celebrity or suddenly realizes that he has progressed while his wife has not he is usually to blame. He has been too busy to tell her of his business, of his new discoveries on the horizon of his changing perspectives. He has not had time to discuss anything with her on his journey to success and the result is obvious. These cases are pitiful, but the man also should appreciate the many virtues which his wife does possess and be proud of her before all the world for these.

Let him never think it is too late to give her advantages and let him never dream of deserting her because she cannot shine in society.

NERVE is what counts in time of danger and that is what the cool-headed fireman of the Southern Pacific freight train possessed to a remarkable degree when it was wrecked in the upper end of the valley Monday. This man, whose name is unknown to us, when the catastrophe happened in which the engineer lost his life by leaping from the cab, bravely stayed at his post and while the disconnected engine was rushing and swaying along the rails at a frightful rate of speed, took his chief's place at the throttle, reversed the engine, shut off the steam and brought the ponderous runaway to a standstill. We have read about brave, cool-headed locomotive engineers, but we doubt if the man ever lived who possessed more nerve and judgment than that evinced by this level-headed, cool and determined fireman when put to the test. With such men at the throttle of our locomotives there would be fewer railway accidents recorded, but where can one find them. They are not made—they are born.

THE fellow who stumbled and said he clutched at a girl's ankle like a drowning man at a straw ought to have been mobbed, not so much for the clutching act but for the use of the comparison, which was almost equivalent to the old slam about pipe-stems.

AN unspire was recently killed by an exploding bottle of soda pop. Anti-prohibitionists will not fail to make a note of this new soda-pop peril.—Ex.

ALL DRUGGISTS: 50c. AND $1.00

THIS IS SAID TO HELP MANY.

Mix this Simple, Helpful Recipe at Home and Try It, Anyway.

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered by an eminent authority, who writes in a New York daily paper, as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

A druggist here at home when asked stated that he could either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription for our readers, also recommends it as harmless.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. CLENEY & CO., Toledo, O. The Supervisors Inspect El Verano Bridge.

The Board of Supervisors, accompanied by Blair Hart, the member from this district, visited El Verano yesterday and inspected the new county bridge which has just been completed across Sonoma creek near Nevada's Villa. The bridge was erected by the Supervisors to replace the one washed out by the spring freshet of 1906. It is a substantial structure and will prove a great convenience to the people of the valley and the public in general.

The Lemoine Winery.

Frank Lemoine's new winery at Glen Ellen is now in operation and is crushing grapes to its full capacity and will turn out about one hundred thousand gallons of wine this vintage. The cellar is a new one, recently built to replace the one destroyed by fire last winter. It is built of concrete and its appointments are up to date. The fermenting tanks have a capacity of 56,000 gallons and the storage tanks will hold 125,000 gallons of wine.

New City Hall.

FATAL TRAIN WRECK NEAR ANNADIEL.

Engineer of Southern Pacific Plunges to Instant Death and Brake- man Injured.

There was a fatal train wreck on the Southern Pacific near Annadel, a small station several miles north of Glen Ellen, just before dark Monday evening.

The afternoon freight, in charge of Conductor Riley with Engineer Stone behind the throttle, suddenly left the rails while rounding a sharp curve.

The engine did not leave the track when the nine freight cars left the rails, being wrenched free from them when they piled up on each other alongside the track a mass of wreckage.

The wreck happened just after the freight left Annadel station and while it was rushing along at a high rate of speed.

As the cars struck the curve there was a mighty lurch and in an instant they were piled up along the track into a shapeless mass of iron and wood.

Being freed from the toppling cars the engine speeded ahead with lightning-like rapidity. It was then that Engineer Stone lost his nerve and leaped from the cab. He struck on his head and was instantly killed.

The fireman remained in the cab and after the unfortunate engineer had leaped to his death he rushed to the throttle and with rare presence of mind reversed the engine, shut off the steam and brought the locomotive to a standstill after speeding along the track for a thousand yards.

Conductor Riley and all the train crew came out of the wreck unscathed with the exception of brakeman Mills, who received a severe scalp wound.

Engineer Stone resided with his family in Oakland and the run through this valley that led to his death Monday evening proved to be his first and last run.

The Woman's Club.

The Sonoma Valley Woman's Club held its regular monthly meeting in its commodious parlors on Friday of last week. The question of disposing of the hundred dollars bequeathed to the club by the late Mrs. Minna Leiding came up for discussion, and it was decided to set apart the bequest and use it toward beautifying the plaza when the new city hall will have been completed next spring.

The annual reception of the club women, which was recently postponed on account of the epidemic scare, will now be held on the evening of Friday, October 18th. The ladies are making much preparation for the event and it promises to be a brilliant affair.

Sonoma's Telephone Service to be Improved.

The Sunset Telephone and Telegraph Company will inaugurate a number of improvements in its service here immediately after the new year. Among these will be the installing of one and two party lines in place of the six and seven now in use. This means that instead of a half a dozen patrons being attached to one wire the number will be reduced to one or two. This improvement will be appreciated by its patrons here, where there is more or less "butting in" all the time over the congested wires.

The Swiss Hotel Changes Hands.

The Swiss Hotel and Beer Garden changed hands Tuesday, J. Vincent having sold out to John Buletta, an experienced hotel man formerly of Petaluma. The new owner is well-known in this valley, having conducted the Half Way House on the Petaluma road and at one time was the landlord of the Brooklyn Hotel in the above city.

Mr. Vincent and family have rented the Tivnen cottage on Second-street West and will continue to reside here.

State Official Visits Here.

Lew Morton of Sacramento visited his old friend Frank Koenig of the Union Hotel last Sunday. Mr. Morton was formerly a prominent resident of Healdsburg but is now First Assistant Secretary of State under Chas. J. Curry. He has held the position during the two terms of Mr. Curry's incumbency.

The Malonchi Will.

The matter of probating the will of the late Leopoldo Malonchi comes up before the Superior Court in Santa Rosa at ten o'clock Monday morning when Florindo Nichelini, through his attorney, Thos. J. Butts, will apply for letters testamentary. The value of estate is set down at $1500.

CALENDAR DAY IN SUPERIOR COURT.

Many Important Suits are Set for Trial by Judges Seawell and Denny.

The trial of the contest over the estate of the late Mrs. Teresa Wensinger was reset in Judge Seawell's department for December 11th.

The trial of the action of Lou Farmer vs. Daniel Behmer, involving a permanent injunction against the defendant from leasing a house on First street, Santa Rosa, for alleged purposes of prostitution, was set for October 29th.

The matter of the disposition of community property of the estate of Catherine Alton, was set for December 17th.

The demurrer was sustained in the suit of John D. Henshaw vs. John J. White.

These matters were continued: Hobson vs. Mashima, Mary Jane Shaw vs. Town of Sebastopol, Wm. Hill Company vs. C. E. Whitney, the People vs. Frank Petri, to October 14th; Mary Burns vs. John Burns, to October 28th.

In Judge Denny's department the trial of the suit of Cooper vs. McDonald was reset for November 12th.

The demurrer was withdrawn and ten days allowed to answer in the suit of Neilson vs. Reibell.

These matters were continued: Fitts Lumber Co. vs. Stearns, Wheeler et al., to November 1st.

The matter of the distribution of the estate of Jean Couralet was dropped from the calendar.

Letters of administration were issued to George E. Baugh on the estate of Jacob Phillips, in a bond of $600, and to Margaret Taylor on the estate of Roger F. Taylor, in a bond of $1200.

A sale of realty to J. A. Anderson in the estate of Sarah J. Jamison for $1,700 was commenced.

The final account of the estate of Angelo Martini was settled and allowed.

Charged With Attempt to Tap a Till.

A roving individual who answered to the name of James Fell, was arrested last Saturday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Joe Ryan, charged with attempting to tap the till of the Bridge Saloon at the western end of Napa street. Fell was caught in the act by Mrs. Baccala, the wife of the proprietor, who was absent at the time. Mrs. Baccala, who was in a rear room, heard the bell of the till ring and entering the barroom discovered the man behind the counter, and charged him with tampering with the till. This he denied, but admitted taking three cigars, which he paid for. He then disappeared and when apprehended by the officer had tramped several miles in the direction of Napa.

When Fell appeared before Judge Small for a preliminary hearing he was discharged from custody as his honor did not consider the evidence sufficient to warrant him in holding the man on so serious a charge.

Sunday Closing.

Eastland's Model Pharmacy will close Sunday afternoons from 1 to 5 o'clock.

There was a slight fall of rain yesterday.

My Hair Ran Away

Don't have a falling out with your hair. It might leave you! Then what? That would mean thin, scraggly, uneven, rough hair. Keep your hair at home! Fasten it tightly to your scalp! You can easily do it with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is something more than a simple hair dressing. It is a hair medicine, a hair tonic, a hair food.

PETER C. HEIN KILLS HIMSELF WITH PISTOL.

Had Resided in this Valley Forty Years and Was a Veteran Odd Fellow.

Peter C. Hein, for forty years a resident of Sonoma and a veteran Odd Fellow, committed suicide in this place Wednesday by shooting himself through the head with a pistol.

The exact hour when he took his life will never be known, but was some time during Wednesday afternoon.

For a number of years the deceased had been living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Van Every on Spain street. Feeling to put in an appearance at me 1 time on Tuesday his absence alarmed the Van Everys, who are aged people, and they had the neighbors to initiate a search for him with the result that he was found dead in a barn at the rear of the Van Every home.

The deceased was lying on his back and a bullet hole through the head and a revolver alongside the body showed the manner of death. He had shot himself in the right ear, the bullet passing out at the top of the head. He must have died instantly. No other motive can be assigned for the rash act except ill-health, as poor Hein had been ailing for some time.

An inquest was held over the remains yesterday and a verdict of suicide rendered by the coroner's jury.

Peter Hein had resided in this valley for forty years and for over twenty-five years was the drawbridge tender of the California Northwestern railway on Sonoma creek near McGill's station, now known as Wingo. He was retired several years ago to make way for a younger man.

Every hunter that shot over the Sonoma marshes knew the generous-hearted and hospitable Peter Hein, and during his time his cabin in the tules had sheltered many a notable from the metropolis and not a few Sonoma Valley sportsmen.

Peter Hein was a veteran Odd Fellow, having become a member of Sonoma Lodge, No. 23, thirty-three years ago. He was also a member of Verdant Rebekah Degree Lodge, No. 89.

The deceased was a native of Denmark and aged 63 years. He leaves an only sister, who resides in Hamburg, Germany, and to whom he remitted money every Christmas for many years.

The funeral takes place to-morrow under the auspices of his brother Odd Fellows.

The Little Cuban.

[Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Baerment.]
Percy Havens was having his fling. His father had had his fling, but did not approve of the same course in his son and turned him out. Percy joined an filibustering expedition to Cuba, signing as Stephen White.

The captain of the vessel made an effort to dissuade him.
"Drop the idea," said the officer. "It's all very sentimental to talk of patriotism and Cuban liberty, but you don't know the crowd as well as I do. There's jealousy, envy and discord. They won't give you a show. It's rags, starvation and not even a thankie at the end of it. Better go back home."

"But I have no home," was the reply.
"Hoot hoot. You've had a row with the old man and got your back up. He has been too stiff with you, perhaps, but you can make it up in half an hour. Come down off your high horse a bit, my boy."

"I-I couldn't go back. Thanks, captain, for your interest in me, but I'll take in a few months of this, anyhow. I ought to steady me down. I guess I've been a little wild."

"That's your crowd," laughed the captain as the band of insurgents that had met the steamer to unload the arms began quarrelling among themselves. "I guess it's a pretty tough crowd," applied White, "but I'll try to chum up with them some way. There'll be rows enough to keep me from thinking of other things—things back in the States. So long and thanks again. May meet you if you come again."

The Cuban patriots were the generals, the colonels and the captains. Now and then a volunteer was made a lieutenant, but the general policy was to keep them below that rank. White refused all promotion. As a scout he was soon called a dardoviel. As a fighter he went into battle laughing. The Spanish offered a reward for his head, and the patriots became jealous of the reputation he was making. He brought them information time after time that meant success, but they acted on it half heartily or not at all. There was a feeling in the battalion that he must be suppressed or he would become a dangerous rival—that is, he would do something to ruin his commission.

Between the trocha drawn across the island and the dense forest where the outposts of the Cuban "army" lurked in idleness and fear most of the time was the house of old Gonzales, with the pretty and motherless daughter. The old man was trying to stand neutral, though a born Cuban. The daughter flirted with the officers of either side, but was believed to be loyal to the cause. Young White was one of those who thoroughly believed in her. Now and then as he went on one of his scouts he was a caller at the house. Perhaps there was even talk of love. The situation was far from prosaic. The Spaniards discovered that White was a caller at the house, and they laid traps for him, but always in vain. The patriots ascertained the same thing, and when it was that called and had more than one talk with father and daughter will never be known.

"No, no, we will not do it," they said at the first offer of gold to betray the American, but at the third they accepted. They accepted and smiled in the face of their victim as he came again. It was Spanish gold, but it had not come to them through Spanish hands. The American was too forward. He was bringing in too much information. He was becoming too insistent. When the patriots had had a skirmish they wanted to rest on their laurels for a month. He did not want to rest a day. Then one day he was reported missing. A day later it was known that the Spaniards had got him. He had visited old Gonzales and walked into their trap—a trap set on the information sent to them by a patriot. Yes, the man with a price on his head, the man who had been called the "American devil," the man who had ambushed and slain more of the enemy than any score of patriots and who had been in the front at every engagement, was a prisoner at last. There was rejoicing in the lines about Havana.

White was a prisoner of war, entitled to be treated as such, but they burned the soles of his feet, they broke the bones of his fingers, they stretched him on the rack. And then, riddled though he was, though never plating one dot of his courage, they placed him in an old sugar house, a club tied to his wrist, and then turned loose their bloodhounds on him. Two of them were dead when they opened the door. And outside of the cabin of Gonzales the old father and daughter sat in the shade and watched the black clouds of a thunderstorm coming up.

"He was a brave man, that Senor Americano," said the daughter, "and perhaps you should not have sold his life as we did."

"Point!" replied the father. "What is one human life among so many? What is the odds how one dies? We needed the gold more than he needed his life. He was a brave man, but he had father, mother, brother or sister to miss him."

Higher and blinder rose the cloud, and they heard the snort of thunder far off. Presently there came a puff of wind, and the rain came up to go inside and over the roof. Then from out of the depths of the black cloud came a flash, followed by a peal of thunder that made the earth tremble, and the rain beat down in two hard, and the father and daughter looked at each other and said in their hearts, "Point!"

A Certain Cure for Croup—Used for 10 Years Without Failure.

Mr. W. C. Bott, a Star City, Ind., hardware merchant, is enthusiastic in his praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. His children have also been subject to croup, and he has used this remedy for the past ten years, and though they much feared the croup, his wife and he always felt safe upon retiring when a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was in the house. His oldest child was subject to severe attacks of croup, but this remedy never failed to effect a speedy cure. He has recommended it to friends and neighbors and all who have used it say that it is unequalled for croup and whooping cough. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

The Daily Chronicle and Index-Tribune only $9 for the two newspapers.

A Quick and Safe Remedy for Bowel Complaints.

Twenty years ago Mr. Geo. W. Brock discovered that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was a quick and safe cure for bowel complaints. "During all of these years," he says, "I have used it and recommended it many times and the results have never yet disappointed me." Mr. Brock is publisher of the Aberdeen, Md., Enterprise. How to Cure a Cold.

The question of how to cure a cold without unnecessary loss of time is one in which we are all more or less interested, for the quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less the danger of pneumonia and other serious diseases.

Mr. B. W. L. Hall, of Waverly, Va., has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for years and says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me." For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Daily Examiner and Index-Tribune $9 a year for both papers.

Quinsey, Sprains and Swellings Cured.

"In November, 1901, I caught cold and had the quinsey. My throat was swollen so I could hardly breathe. I applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me relief in a short time. In two days I was all right," says Mrs. L. Cousins, Otterburn, Mich. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is a liniment and is especially valuable for sprains and swellings. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

The Chase Home Place.

The Chase home place has been sold to Mr. W. B. Austin of Stockton, California, and he has commenced the subdivision of this beautiful tract into resident lots. It is Mr. Austin's intention to make this subdivision the Choice Resident Part of Sonoma, and he will make every effort to interest parties wishing to build homes. Avenues will be graded through the tract, cement sidewalks will be laid on both sides of the principal avenue, ornamental trees will be planted, and substantial bridges will be constructed over the creek running through the tract.

The Chase home place has been noted for its beautiful trees, which are one of the desirable features in the selection of a resident lot. There will be no farmyards or chicken ranches in this subdivision. Every effort will be made to have the improvements desirable.

Mr. Austin has decided to give five lots free of cost for the purpose of constructing desirable residences, and he will make all reasonable inducements as to prices and terms to any party wishing to build a home in this tract.

That this is a rare opportunity to secure a home site there can be no question, and any one contemplating building will do well to investigate Mr. Austin's offer at once, as it is reasonably certain that this offer will not last long.

Prices of lots in this tract range from $200.00 to $300.00 according to location. Terms can be arranged to suit the purchaser, and the property can be purchased from any real estate agent in Sonoma, or through Mr. Austin's authorized agent, George E. Crane, care of B. F. Campbell, Sonoma, California.

A CLEAN WATCH

means good time to you for years to come. True eco-nomy in a time-piece lies in cleanliness. The delicate parts doing indissoluble work will soon wear themselves to ruin, destroy their high finish and perfect fit when run long in accumulating dirt and rusted oil. It will cost you nothing to let us examine it.
